

Keck School of Medicine of USC

Presents

2021~2022 USC Student Health Faculty Development Series

Activity Information:

Update on Irritable Bowel Syndrome

Dates & Times: Wednesday, February 23, 2022 at 8:00 AM – Wednesday, February 23, 2022 at 9:00 AM

Location: USC Health Sciences Campus

AMA Category 1 Credits: 1.00

Speaker(s):

Surinder Mann, MD
Professor of Medicine
Keck Med Center of USC

Objectives:

- 1 Compare current practices with medical literature and evidence based guidelines
- 2 Interpret medical evidence to apply best primary care practices for a student health population

Educational Format: Live Activity

Target Specialties: Family Medicine, Internal Medicine, Obstetrics And Gynecology, Pediatrics

Target Professions: Physician, Allied Health Professional

Accreditation Statement(s):

The Keck School of Medicine of the University of Southern California is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Disclosure:

As an organization accredited by the ACCME The Keck School of Medicine of the University of Southern California requires everyone who is in a position to control the content of an education activity to disclose prior to the activity all relevant financial relationships with any commercial interest. All disclosed relevant financial relationships will have been resolved prior to the commencement of the activity.

Name of individual	Individual's role in activity	Name of commercial interest/Nature
--------------------	-------------------------------	------------------------------------

		of relationship
Surinder Mann, MD	Faculty	Nothing to disclose - 06/09/2021

During the course of this activity there may be report and/or discussion of unlabeled or unapproved uses of pharmaceuticals and/or medical devices. All such report and/or discussion are attested to be based on evidence that is generally accepted within the profession of medicine and conforms to the generally accepted standards of experimental design, data collection and analysis.

Support:

None

In accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), please call the CME office at (323)442-2555 should you require special assistance or need additional information regarding this activity.